Facebook, an American social media platform has changed its name to Meta.

META The New Name of Facebook

Joiner Rosemont
Opinion Co-Editor
John.n.rodri@rhc.edu

Facebook, an American social media platform has changed its name to Meta. It was announced on Tuesday morning October 28 at the Facebook Connect augmented. It was also announced at a virtual reality conference while they were reflecting the company's ambitions growing beyond social media. According to CNBC, the rebranding also comes after the company has dealt with many new reports over the past month stemming from whistleblower Frances Haughn's trove of internal documents.

Frances Haughn, a former ex-employee, leaked a series of documents which included many stories that followed from The Wall Street Journal and other publications. One story that was notable was a story that showed the company knew Instagram was detrimental to teenagers' mental health and was doing little about according to the article Facebook documents show how toxic Instagram is for teens, Wall Street Journal reports.

"My view is that what we are seeing is a coordinated effort to selectively use leaked documents to paint a false picture of our company," Zuckerberg said after the company's earnings. Some of the documents that were released showed that the number of teen users of Facebook apps in the United States has declined by 13% since 2015.

According to the Verge, with a projected drop of about 46% over the next two years. Bloomberg had reported that Facebook researchers found the company was not expecting people born anytime after 2000. At least until after they were around their mid-twenties.

Meta had addressed the issue on Monday in its earnings report. The company stated that it will be providing both Instagram and Facebook to feature videos in an effort to attract young users. However, according to Zuckerberg, "this shift will take years, not months, to fully execute."

Meta CEO Zuckerberg would go and say, "Today we are seen as a social media company, but in our DNA we are a company that builds technol-

Pig Kidney Successfully Transplanted Into Human

Christopher Elias
Reporter
Chris.e.eli@rhc.edu

With a title as strong as the one given there should be some shock. However, not mistitled, Dr. Montgomery and his team at N.Y.U. Langone Health have done it. They have successfully transplanted a pig kidney into a human, but what does this mean? The success of the procedure now brings up many questions.

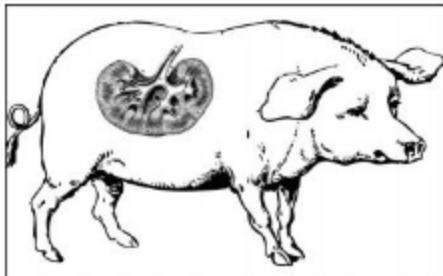

Conducted by Dr. Montgomery the procedure involved attaching the kidney to the blood vessels in the upper leg of the patient. The kidney in use came from a genetically altered pig. Using gene editing and cloning allows for the pig (s) to grow organs that are less likely to be rejected by a human. This was done by removing a pig gene that "encodes a sugar molecule" that causes a human rejection response. The pig was genetically engineered by Revivicor and FDA approved as human therapy.

When it comes to the patient at hand, due to ethical dilemmas, the patient was brain dead. Through the permission given by the patient's family, after attaching the kidney they monitored its progress for 54 hours. After which it was called a success seeing as the kidney took "almost immediately" and continued to function properly. What does this mean now? Will we start having people walking around with pig organs?

Over 100,000 Americans are on the transplant list and 90,240 of those people need a kidney transplant. With the success of this surgery there might be a way for many of these people to get the organs they need. However, there are multiple different things to take in to consider on before assuming this is the magic fix. First and foremost is the long term effects of a xeno transplantation. Or the lack of knowledge that we have of those effects. Then moral and ethical dilemmas come into the question. Are we truly willing to raise millions of pigs a year just to harvest their organs for ourselves. On top of the 100 million we kill annually in the U.S. for food.

With all that aside, how far are we from seeing this practice regularly? The truth is no one has a definitive answer. Some say we can possibly see it within a few months, while others say this is only the first step of many to come. Whether it happens today, tomorrow, or years from now this is still a huge accomplishment and step forward in medicine.

Golden State Warriors Start Off Strong

Justen Gomez
Reporter
justin.gomez@rhc.edu

Since this season started on October 19th, the Golden State Warriors have come out the gates hot. They have started the season 4-0 leading the western conference. They are one of only three teams that are left undefeated so far this season. This has been the Warriors best start since their 2015-2016 season. Unfortunately, they ended up losing in the NBA final against LeBron

James and the Cleveland Cavaliers. Even though they lost, the bright side of that season was that they ended the regular season with the best record of all time. With this strong start, the Warriors look to have a successful season after falling just short last season.

The Warriors started the season with two big wins against tough western conference opponents. Their first win was against the 2020 champions the Los Angeles Lakers. They were able to take down LeBron James and the newly formed Lakers 121-114. Then they had a day break before playing their second game against the Los Angeles Clippers. They successfully took them down with Stephen Curry dropping 46 points in their two point victory over the Clippers. Since then they have also beat the Sacramento Kings and the Oklahoma City Thunder. With these wins, they look to carry this momentum into their next couple of games.

Through four games Stephen Curry is already looking like the league MVP with the numbers he has been putting up. Throughout four games he is averaging 29 points 8 rebounds and 6 assists. These are

The company has also announced that it will increase its stock price from $18 to $25 on Dec. 3. Meanwhile, Meta's stock price had dropped up on Thursday. Furthermore, back in July the company had announced the formation of a team that would work on the Metaverse. Andrew "Boss" Bosworth, currently the head of the company's hardware division will take the role of chief technology officer in 2022. When the third quarter earnings results came in Monday morning, the company announced that it will release its hardware division into its own reporting segment which will begin in the fourth quarter. Zuckerberg had gone on and stated in a letter on Thursday saying,

"Our hope is within the next decade, the metaverse will reach a billion people, host hundreds of billions of dollars of digital commerce, and support jobs for millions of creators and developers."

Over the past couple of years, the company has ramped up efforts in hardware, which includes a line of Portal VR calling devices. ## California Lawsuit Against Activision Blizzard Complicates Following Federal Settlement

Blizzard of Justice
Olivier Co-Saltor
blizzardofjustice.com

The lawsuit filed against Activision Blizzard by the California Department for Employment and Training (DTE) has been denied following the results of a separate lawsuit by the United States Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC).

The EEOC in a two-year long investigation of the gaming developer, concluding in a lawsuit in July. The EEOC also carried out an investigation and lawsuit parallel to the DTE. The EEOC lawsuit resulted in a settlement for $8 million dollars.

This caused issues for the case being built by the DTE. The settlement essentially gives Activision Blizzard the OK to seek a lot of court-ordered discovery evidence to the DTE case. The DTE sought to dispute, however their request was denied by the EEOC. Notably, due to a conflict of interest, and a breach of California law. Two attorneys who worked for the EEOC when they were investigating claims that led to the eventual settlement, are in leadership roles for the DTE team and are now objecting to the settlement. In response

Graphic by Brandon Ramirez for El Paisano Media
Twitch usually serves a good gauge for a game's general popularity. It's hard to say if the drop has to do with the details of the lawsuit coming to light, or if it has to do with waning interest due to competition. Regardless, it's telling when considering the impact of the lawsuit.

At best, and taken in hopes of gaining some thing

Going to college, putting your 18th in a piece of paper, can feel like a lot. Trusting that your professors will teach you the right things. Trusting that you're going to get some money for something. When putting it in those terms, the best doesn't seem fair.

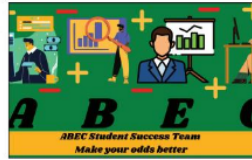

Rio Honda wants to better your odds. The Student Success team at Rio Honda is here for you.

The Student Success team is interested in accounting, business, economics, and/or computer technology. The ABEC Student Success team is specifically here to help you with your goals.

Going into the ABC field of studies can already feel like a daunting challenge. However, the 10 members of the ABEC Student Success Team might say otherwise. Actually, they might not, but that's what you should want from your team, honesty.

This Student Success Team has 10 members for a reason. ABEC majors occupy a large chunk of the student population at Rio Honda. Having a major that is impacted anywhere you transfer to can have its pros and cons. At least you'll never be alone in your struggles. With that being said, the Student Success team encourages any and all ABEC students to get in touch.

The team is here for your success. With a shared team of counselors, professionals, and the Business Dean herself, Gio Runkle, the ABEC Student Success team looks to lead you towards your career on the path.

There are many opportunities to be earned, along with degrees, in the ABC field. One could enter the field from any direction. If you just want to earn a certificate for Logistics Management, the team can help with that. If your goal is an Accounting associate's degree, the team can definitely help with that.

This debacle follows the increased pressure on Activision Blizzard earlier this year when the DTE decided to sue, and shareholders reacted with a mix of their own. Further pressure came from Activision Blizzard staff themselves, with a walk-out taking place soon after the lawsuit came to light. Activision Blizzard is being accused of having an extremely hostile workplace. The game developer has allegedly housed a community where the mistreatment of employees was common.

The settlement also sparked backlash from concerned groups. The Communication Workers of America (CWA) released a statement from Sara Padilla, the Secretary/Treasurer of the CWA on Twitter. "Yesterday's insufficient EEOC settlement made it clear that the thousands of Activision Blizzard workers who are suffered from years of toxic workplace misconduct on behalf of Activision Blizzard will not receive just justice. Activision Blizzard is worth $2.3 billion, an $2.3 million settlement is mere pennies on dering the measures available to the shareholders. Even worse, Activision Blizzard's management does not acknowledge that their actions harmed their workers, viewing the settlement as a very small price to pay to rid themselves of a distraction.

The U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission has sent a message that corporate bad actors will not be held accountable for their abuse of workers. We hope enforcement staff at the EEOC, NLRB, and California DFEH are paying attention and choose to fully hold Activision Blizzard accountable on behalf of the company's 30,000 workers. This settlement has been echoed throughout much of the gaming community, with many users of the Board to reduce its pay to the lowest amount California law will allow for people earning a salary, which is $14.85 per hour. The pay also comes after a large pay raise for its recently needed. The issues facing the case are still on the table, regardless if Activision Blizzard seems to be responding to the issues in their work environment.

place aspect that has been heavily criticized. The letter regarding progress the company has made following their initial response from a white back, it is also explained the launch of a zero tolerance policy for sexual harassment. "We, the Activision Blizzard employees found through our own investigative processes and resources to have retaliated against anyone for making a compliance complaint will be terminated immediately. In many other instances of work place conduct, we will no longer rely on written warnings: termination will be the outcome, including in most cases of harassment based on any legal protected category." It is noted to kick in the letter. Furthermore, it is also explained "Specifically, I have advised the Board to reduce its pay to the lowest amount California law will allow for people earning a salary, which is $14.85 per hour. The pay also comes after a large pay raise for its recently needed. # The River Deep Student Film Festival

The River Deep Student Film Festival is an annual two-day event showcasing the year's best films developed by Rio Hondo College students. Students enter their work into competition and from these films, finalists are selected. During the two-day event, finalists' films are screened, winners are announced, and prizes are awarded. Guest speakers from the film industry are invited to present during one of the days of the festival to discuss their own work and to talk about opportunities for up-and-coming filmmakers, followed by a Q&A session. River Deep was cofounded and is coordinated by Rio faculty members Tom Callinan and Sheila Lynch.

Requirements

The River Deep Student Film Festival is open to students currently enrolled at Rio Hondo College. Students must write, direct, shoot, and edit their own work, alone or in collaboration with other Rio Hondo College students; filmmakers may receive guidance and help from instructors and professionals.

The primary work, however, must be performed by the students.

Students may use actors of any age to play different roles.

There are no restrictions on the art form of your film. Films may be live action, animation, claymation, still photography or any combination. All films must include end-credits that acknowledge writer(s), director, performers, and member of the production crew, such as editors, cinematographers, camera operators, and so forth.

Selected entries will be showcased at the Rio Hondo College Writes of Spring festival in April.

Categories

- Microshort Category (1-5 minutes in length) All genres accepted
- Short Film Category (6-12 minutes in length) All genres accepted

How to submit

1. The River Deep Student Film Festival is accepting submissions of original films via:

<http://riverdeepsubmissionform.blogspot.com>

Students must upload video to their own Vimeo or Youtube account, then submit the link to the submission form.

2. Three entries max. per student.

3. The deadline for entries is midnight Friday, Thursday, March 15th, 2018.
