Introduction

Through the annual planning process Rio Hondo College demonstrates the relationship between the long-term strategic plan of the college and the work of programs on campus. It’s a process that allows staff, faculty, and administrators a way to explain their contributions to the institution’s progress and how their contributions will continue throughout the next year. The data generated provides a basis for assessment of institutional progress and allows the college to make informed decisions about the allocation of resources.

Each program on campus is asked to complete an annual program plan each year and a program review every six years.

The following information is requested in the annual program plan:

Program Description

The program’s mission statement, budget, number of faculty and staff, location, services, and target audience. The program’s involvement with, and the impact of, professional development activities, local projects, and statewide initiatives. Progress made towards the program’s objectives stated in previous program plans over the last year.

Program Outcomes

Instructional programs “close the loop” on course-level outcomes by documenting successes, opportunities, and action steps. The assessment timeline of course-level outcomes are provided.

Non-instructional programs identify outcome assessment methods and the results of these assessments. The assessment timeline of program-level outcomes is provided.

Program Data Analysis

Instructional programs review and analyze enrollment trends, student achievement, and equity gaps in order to identify strengths and opportunities and to inform objectives and resource requests.

Non-Instructional programs provide program data with analysis of trends in order to identify strengths and opportunities and to inform objectives and resource requests.

Program Objectives & Resource Requests

Programs identify at least one objective to work on the following academic year and request resources that are needed to accomplish the objectives.

For example, programs may choose to look at FTES, course success, and equity gaps in course success. Programs may indicate whether trends have increased, decreased, or remained relatively stable over the past five years.

In looking at enrollment and achievement data, historical comparisons can be made as well as comparisons to like disciplines in your division, the division overall, and to the college overall.

Non-Instructional Programs:

Provide data relevant to your program outcomes, primary program functions, and other significant topics. Include analysis of data trends and reasons for these trends.
